My mom was a children's librarian.

She died this past New Year's Eve, about 10 hours after Betty White.

She would've loved it here.

Fuck you, cancer.

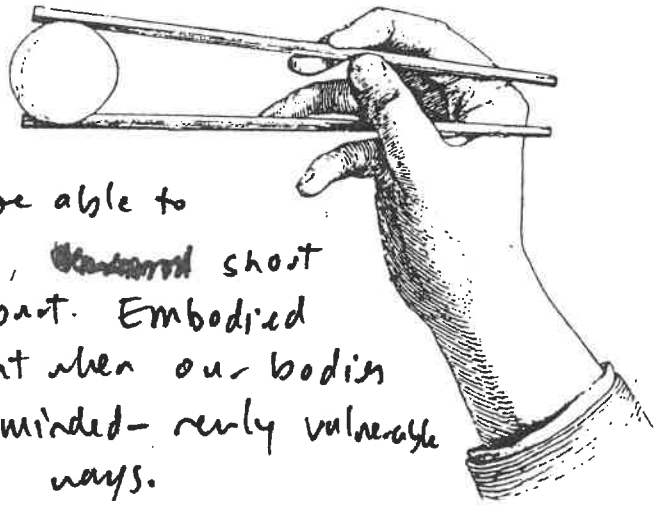
6/24/22

I was setting up the Zine Pavilion when I saw the news about Roe being overturned. My body went cold, even tho we knew this was coming. Still shocks the system. A friend says, like when someone dies. It's suddenly different, even if you expected it.

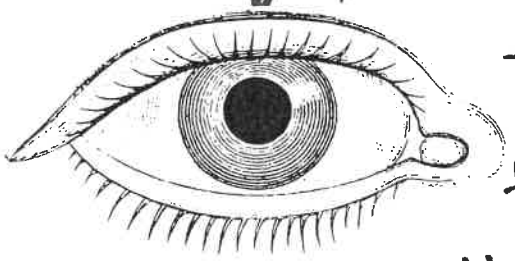
First conference back F2F in a pandemic — I was ambivalent, almost wish I hadn't come. Lots of justified anger at the ableism of it all. Will I get COVID? Spread COVID? Is it worth it?

But I said I would be here, so here I am.



Surreal to be able to go in person, [redacted] short outside the court. Embodied community, but when our bodies are — we're reminded — newly vulnerable in so many ways.

Is your space accessible and affirming for trans & nonbinary people??



I deserve to use a public restroom that doesn't misgender me. ALL-GENDER bathrooms are the future —

SIZE OF THE HEART The normal human heart is approximately the size of a man's fist loosely clenched.

And an abnormal human's?

I feel mine,
queer and mexican,
takes up my entire thoracic cavity.

It clenches, draws back, and begs me
to tell it where to aim

The eyes have it.

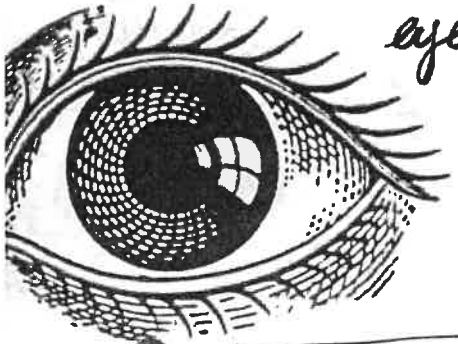
ALA: WARNING

SIDE EFFECTS MAY VARY



eyes: Overwhelmed from crowds, brightly colored signs, and the whole exhibition hall heart: Palpating from the DC Heat, racing from meeting a favorite author, incredibly ~~[illegible]~~ inspired by a community of librarians hands: Aching from heavy tote bags feet: Throbbing from miles walked across the Convention Center.
